LAS VEGAS – Cox Business / Hospitality Network, a provider of telecommunications services to the commercial and gaming-resort verticals, has completed the deployment of state-of-the-art Wi-Fi technology at The New Tropicana Las Vegas which includes the property's 1,467 guest rooms as well as wired and wireless Internet access inside the 26,000-square-foot Trinidad Pavilion, an expansion of the existing convention area. The Company is now providing Wi-Fi throughout the property's nearly 100,000 square feet of convention space.

"We know visitors to Las Vegas want to stay connected and expect technology to enhance their Vegas experience," said Derrick Hill, vice president of Cox Business/Hospitality Network. "Cox is meeting this expectation head on by providing guests of The New Tropicana Las Vegas with our state-of-the-art Wi-Fi experience."

"We now offer one of the fastest Wi-Fi services available in a hotel in Las Vegas, and we're absolutely thrilled to provide this enhanced service to guests," said Arik Knowles, vice president of hotel operations for The New Tropicana Las Vegas.

The upgraded Internet access at The New Tropicana Las Vegas will not only satisfy increasing user demand for mobility, but will also result in a substantial leap in bandwidth availability for room guests and delegates to the convention area. Cox Business/Hospitality Network currently provides free-to-guest cable television and video on demand services (VOD) to guest rooms at the resort. VOD services include Hollywood blockbusters, still-in-theatre movies and new releases covering a multitude of categories such as action, thriller, comedy, drama and family, among others.
